Overview

Formal mentoring programs have never been more important.

For years, organizations have relied on what we call “career cupids” when organizing mentorship programs – leaders who manually match employees with one another for career guidance. The problem is that while these matches are often made with good intentions, manual processes are inherently filled with bias – or worst nepotism.

On top of this, the shift to hybrid work environments has made the organic development of mentoring relationships tougher. The result? Organizations must be more intentional about how their employees build relationships and develop their careers going forward.

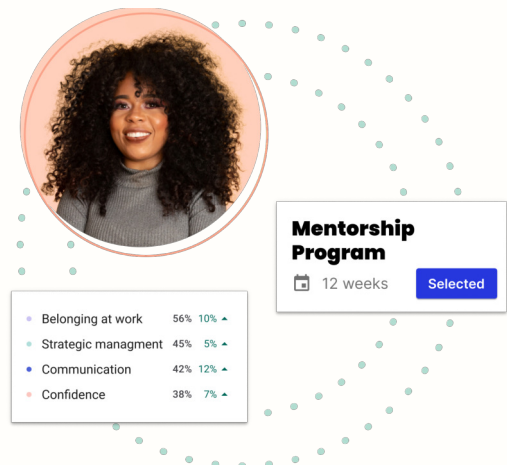

“Formal mentoring programs provide talent – especially diverse talent – with the skills and relationships needed to advance in their careers and create a sense of belonging to their organizations.”

Dave Wilkin, Co-founder, Ten Thousand Coffees

Make mentorship your competitive advantage.

Here's what we know:

- ✓ 62% of employees would leave their employer for one that offers mentorship opportunities.
- ✓ Individuals who take part in Mentoring programs are 5x more likely to get promoted and 5x more like to receive a raise.
- ✓ Up to a +24% increase of diverse talent at management level with a mentoring program.

The problem? Traditionally, mentoring programs aren't scalable or measurable. Existing practices are manual, time consuming – and inherently biased.

Ten Thousand Coffees is more than a mentoring program. We deliver a holistic experience.

Here's how we do it:

1. Community Approach

When employees join Ten Thousand Coffees, they're getting not only a single mentor, but connection to leaders, subject matter experts and an entire community.

Participants can build connections with peers and colleagues who are going through the program. This builds engagement across your organization and expands participants' networks beyond a single mentor.

2. Participant Resources

Throughout the experience, we provide the tools to turn a causal connection into a meaningful development experience.

Our program toolkits and competency building resources – everything from professional communication skills to how to set career development goals – ensure participants are set up for success.

3. Formats for Everyone

Ten Thousand Coffees' solution provides both 1:1 formats for mentorship as well as interactive roundtable formats (Office Hours) for leaders and subject matter experts to host group sessions around program themes.

This flexibility provides leaders, who might not have the time to mentor, with a scalable way to get involved and participate. For employees, it provides visibility to senior leaders as well as insight into company strategy.

Effective Mentorship

What makes an effective mentorship program?

Winning Ideas

Set clear expectations

Mentees and mentors are more likely to be promoted (5x and 6x respectively) than those who do not participate in mentorship programs. But in order to ensure a mutually beneficial mentoring relationship, expectations and responsibilities must be clear and agreed upon.

Implement formal programs

Introducing formal mentorship programs are important for DEI considerations, as research shows diverse talent often lack the confidence to reach out to senior leaders and 60% of male managers are uncomfortable mentoring women.

Create paths to sponsorship

Sponsorship provides employees with opportunities like key stretch assignments and someone who advocates on their behalf. Sponsorship results in better promotion of equity-seeking groups and therefore should always be built in as an optional next step in a mentoring journey.

Make programs measurable

Accountability mechanisms within businesses can result in positive performance outcomes. Yet, 70% of employees feel their managers aren't objective in how they evaluate their performance, resulting in poor levels of engagement.

10KC Solution

Competency building resources

We provide resources that outline expectations as well as conversation guides so everyone will feel confident in their role.

98% match score

Our Smart Match algorithm matches employees based on their shared interests and goals, removing biases attributed to manual matching techniques.

20% Sponsorship rate

20% of 10KC participants self-identify as wanting to sponsor mentees post-program, and 88% of mentees report 10KC helped them meet their development goals.

Real-time data

Our dashboard not only provides actionable insights on adoption and engagement, but also visibility and transparency into a mentor's efforts so that they can be rewarded.

Let's set up another session to discuss how my team can leverage the insights you showed me.

That would be great.

Save 100s of Lost Hours

Anyone who has ever managed a manual mentorship program can attest to how time consuming they can be. In addition, they tend to break down at around the 50 participant mark due to the effort required to select, match, introduce, nudge and manage the experience.

Leverage our technology to take your mentorship program from burdensome to best in class and use that time saved to move your most strategic work forward.
